Alan Greenspan was appointed Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors on August 23, 1974. He also served as a member of various governmental committees including the Executive Committee of the Energy Resources Council and the Domestic Council. Prior to his governmental appointments, he was President of Townsend-Greenspan and Co., Inc., an economic consulting firm in New York City from 1954-74. In addition, Greenspan has held many leadership positions in nongovernmental associations having served as a member of Time Magazine's Board of Economists and as senior advisor to the Brookings Institution Panel on Economic Activity. He has lectured extensively over the years on various business and economic subjects and contributed numerous articles to professional and business journals. Greenspan holds degrees in economics from New York University.

William E. Becker, Jr. is Associate Professor and Director, Center for Economic Education, University of Minnesota. Professor Becker is a teacher of money and banking and economic education and is the author of many articles and books in economics, economic education and finance. He has been the recipient of national research and instruction awards from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the National Science Foundation. He received his Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of Pittsburgh.

Royall Brandis is Professor of Economics at the University of Illinois. He has contributed numerous articles to economics and professional journals and is the author of several books including Principles of Economics and Current Economic Problems. Dr. Brandis has lectured throughout the country and has served as an economics curriculum consultant to the U.S. Air Force Academy. In addition, he has held leadership positions in many professional organizations including President of the Midwest Economics Association. Brandis received his Ph.D. in economics from Duke University.

Harvey N. Daniels is Vice President, Economist, and Senior Investment Officer with the First National Bank of Minneapolis. He has over 25 years' experience in security analysis, portfolio management and development of broad investment policy and strategy. His current responsibilities include economic research and development of forecasts relative to investment management and annual profit planning. Daniels publishes a quarterly economic letter entitled "Inside the Economy" and monthly columns for outstate newspapers. He received his degree in economics from Dartmouth College.

Richard Gleisner is Associate Professor of Economics at St. Cloud State University. He is a teacher of macroeconomics and money and banking and has written several articles in economics and a textbook on intermediate macro-theory. Professor Gleisner has served as a research economist with the Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System and has conducted research on the determinants of money supply and on the stability of the money multiplier. He received his Ph.D. in economics from Georgetown University.

PARTICIPATING AWARD-WINNING TEACHERS

Elayne Feldman teaches twelfth grade at Fridley Senior High School in Coon Rapids, Minnesota. She will describe "Economics for Today," a nine week contemporary economics course which includes units on the stock market, fiscal policy and monetary policy.

Jack R. Houge, a ninth grade social studies teacher at Apollo High School, St. Cloud, Minnesota, will demonstrate a unit used to culminate a trimester course in economic principles. The unit, "How Your Leisure Time Activity Affects the Economy of St. Cloud," includes activities and student projects.

Emma P. Isaac, a fourth and fifth grade teacher at the Walker Elementary School, Walker, Minnesota, will describe her unit "An Economics Business Adventure" which instructs students in basic economic concepts and principles.

Bruce H. Jasper is a ninth grade teacher at Hosterman Junior High School in Robbinsdale, Minnesota. He will demonstrate the "Community Simulation Game" designed to illustrate many of the financial decisions found in an urban environment.

Diane Reinke, a second grade teacher at Zanewood Elementary School, Osseo, Minnesota, will present her unit "Economics for Primary" designed to give primary students first-hand experiences with basic economic concepts in a market system.

William B. Walstad will describe "Antitrust," an interdisciplinary unit which was developed for twelfth grade students at Lindbergh High School in Hopkins, Minnesota. The unit relates the issue of antitrust to the study of microeconomic concepts as well as to history, political science, sociology and law.
