You might have seen me down in Greece
harvesting October wheat
or along the rocky coast of Hydra.
Living like the sailors do
port to port, drink to drink.
Seeking friends and not so much a lover.
Through European windows you might have
seen me.

You might have seen me down in Spain.
Running down the Spanish plains
or besides the seas of Barcelona.
Living like the seagulls do
summer to summer, dune to dune.
Watching as the tide went rolling over.
Through European windows you might have
seen me.

You might have seen me down in France
fourteenth of July in the dance
or along the hills of the Camargue.
Living like the cowboys do
roundup to roundup, smile to smile.
Riding herd then lying in the clover.
Through European windows you might have
seen me.

You might have seen me anywhere.
Name a country, I was there.
Wasting time and growing older.
Living like the nomads do
day to day but each day through.
Now the days are gone, the time is over.
Through European windows you might have
seen me.

i know in you i've found
a special person,
a person who knows how
to care and be a friend who values others
as they are,
no wonder you mean
so much to me.
