DEAN BERLING

FROM THE DEAN'S CHAIR

There have been several developments in the area of media education that I would like to share with students and graduates alike. It should be encouraging to all of you that we here at St. Cloud take a great deal of pride in how well our graduates are being received by those employers seeking media specialists. It may, in fact, come as quite a surprise to you that we have had some difficulty in providing enough names for administrators seeking elementary level media personnel. The obvious conclusion is that there is indeed a demand for the true media person when administrators are staffing media centers. In the final analysis this a credit to all of you who work as media specialists. You have obviously set the kind of example that makes persons with your background and training desirable employees. The proof of what media graduates from the St. Cloud program can do lies not so much in what they have learned as it does in how well they apply those skills and attitudes. Performance is, after all, the best judge of what a person is capable of being or doing.

Another interesting trend has been the influx of graduate students from outside the immediate area. In years past almost all of our students have been from Minnesota, and it is a source of satisfaction to see how well these people have performed throughout the states. On the other hand, to receive students from other states, from other parts of the country, and from other countries does indeed help to combat provincialism. We may still not be quite as "cosmopolitan" as large universities, but it is interesting to note that we have a number of students from places like North Dakota, Montana, Massachusetts, Iowa, South Dakota, New York, Peru, Africa, and California. It adds a dimension to our program that the graduate students find both interesting and rewarding.

The need for good young people in the media field appears to be growing. Opportunities in the school media field, along with an increasing need for trainers and developers in business and industry have given us a mandate as media professionals to encourage promising members to enter the profession. It is a responsibility that all of us have toward your chosen profession, and only in that way will the profession improve and prosper. We here at St. Cloud State University will do our part in building a program tailored to the needs of the profession and by providing the opportunities for these people to receive such training. In the same vein, it is also the responsibility of all professionals to keep abreast of the changing demands made by those with whom they work in the changing world of technology. One way in which we have attempted to provide greater opportunities is through a feasible summer employment program. A good number of graduate assistantships are available both during the school year and during the summer. It might be well worth your while if you are interested in professional improvement to explore these possibilities; you may find it a lot easier to cope with the changing world of work.

DR. JAMES MAY JOINS FACULTY

Dr. James May has been appointed to the position of Division Leader for Advising and Instruction. He assumes the responsibilities for the position held last year by Mary Louise Turner who has returned to Missouri. Dr. May is a recent graduate of Indiana University with a doctorate in Instructional Systems Technology. He also holds a Masters Degree in Library Science from Indiana and an M.S. in Education from the University of Toledo. His undergraduate degree is from Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Dr. May's most recent work experience was that of media director at Indiana State University-Evansville. His six years of work there preceded his return to the University of Indiana as a full-time graduate student in 1977. He has also had experience teaching in elementary schools in Ohio.

Dr. May's wife, Marilyn, and daughter Julie have joined him in St. Cloud and they have purchased a home on the west side. They are looking forward to a Minnesota winter with some apprehension, but also with a great deal of anticipation of involvement in winter sports. We hope that all of you will make an attempt to get to meet the Mays and that you will truly welcome them to the Minnesota media world.

BETH QUANBECK TO WORK IN REFERENCE

Beth Quanbeck has been employed on a temporary one year contract to fill the vacancy created by Carl Savage's request for a year's leave of absence. Beth is a recent graduate of St. Cloud State and has had some work experience in special libraries. Beth is the junior member of the New London Quanbeck family which has been heavy into media work for many years. Numbered among the many relatives in library/media work are three other members of the immediate family-- father, Randy, mother, Helen, and sister, Louise. Beth has become a member of the reference team in Public Services.

TECHNICAL SERVICES UPDATE

There are three developments that have brought St. Cloud State University and Learning Resources closer than ever to replacing the card catalog with an alternative means of bibliographic control.

The first is the conversion to a machine readable form of the major print collections and all of the film and video collections. The conversion has been referred to as "retrospective input." This tedious and important task forms the base for the other developments related to automation.

The second is the test version of the reference collection on microfiche. There are about 7,000 titles in the reference collection. The bibliographic records on computer tape were formatted and arranged in dictionary order with entries for main entry, title, and subject. Then via the COM (computer output microfilm) process, they were put on microfiche. The result was a full entry catalog of the reference collection that is used by the reference librarians on third floor. It marks the first time they have had a catalog of their collection.

The third development brings the prospect of an on-line catalog very close. The State University System is providing the funds for the development of an on-line access system, using the academic computer at Mankato. Mr. Mike Barnett will be programming the system and a test version of the on-line system will be operating by spring of 1980. Since SCSU has the major portion of its collection in machine readable form, the prospect of a full on-line catalog is very real.

SMELSERS ARRIVE IN LONDON

Lawrence and Bev Smelser left for London on August 26th where Lawrence is the administrator for the London program. A total of 48 SCSU students are enrolled in this program which is staffed primarily by British teachers. In a letter to Dean Berling, the Smelsers indicated that they had adapted to most of the London peculiarities and in particular their special housing. After experiencing the usual overseas transportation problems (i.e., crowded terminal, tearful students, long flight, jet lag, etc.), Lawrence and Bev have settled in for a year of foreign residence. First impressions included: the usual currency translation and exchange difficulties, some getting used to in the Vienna Hotel housing accommodations, daily shopping, an awe of historical sites, London as a city of many foreigners and tourists, the various dialects and languages to be heard in all places and at all times, common bathrooms and not so luxurious beds, the joys of communal living, lovely people and sometimes hostile public transportation officials, bunions on bunions from too much walking, British television, that the pedestrian who assumes he or she has the right of way may be dead right, chicken at $2.26 per pound and steak at from six to seven dollars per pound, the tube and its ease of use, Bev's major complaint that she misses the car and the supermarket and that to put three meals a day on the table without ready stores is a downright hardship, and finally an impression gleaned from the general tone of the letter that they wouldn't exchange the experience even if they had a chance to do so!

MEET THE CLERICAL STAFF

Some of the beautiful and expertly designed graphics that you may have seen in presentations by St. Cloud State faculty can be directly traced to the skill of Shirley Hove who works in Production Services. Shirley is a graphic artist who has been at St. Cloud for seven years. She is a graduate of Little Falls High School and St. Cloud State University; and she has attended Bethel College in St. Paul and the Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, California. Melodie Dukowitz is one of the veteran members of the technical processing personnel. She has worked at St. Cloud for the past seven years. She is a St. Cloud native, having graduated from Apollo High School and the St. Cloud Area Vocational/Technical School. Melodie is one of the resident experts on the OCLC operation. In still another area--electronics technician--St. Cloud State has received some expert technical and electronic advice and service from Jim Simonson. Jim is a graduate of Minot High School and was born and raised in that area of North Dakota. Jim spent four years in the Navy after high school and then attended the North Dakota School of Science. In his capacity as an electronics technician, Jim works on equipment in all areas of the building and on all parts of the campus. He has been at St. Cloud State for seven years.

NEWS FROM REFERENCE

There have been several developments in the reference department that should be of interest to LRS clientele. The fact that a COM catalog of reference materials has been printed has been noted in another article in this issue. Annual corporate reports of major businesses and of all Minnesota publicly owned businesses are being added to the holding of the reference section. Working with the College of Business, reference personnel should be able to establish a very thorough collection in a very short time. BRS (on line searching) has been getting a real test as more and more students and faculty members discover its potential. Indexes for the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press have been added, as has a Minnesota Periodicals Index. Government documents reports that the 1979 U.S. Agriculture and Industry census reports are now being printed and should be available shortly. A service that will perhaps be more useful with the change in policy by Bell Telephone of charging for directory information is the collection of telephone directories being housed in reference. An attempt is being made to have a complete file of Minnesota directories and a file of the larger cities throughout the United States.

FACULTY CHANGES

Several changes have been made in addition to the employment of James May and Beth Quanbeck. Carl Savage asked for and received a year's leave of absence and has assumed the position of audiovisual coordinator at Plymouth Junior High School in the Robbinsdale School District. Lawrence Smelser is spending the year in England as the coordinator of the London program. Information about the Smelsers in London can be found elsewhere in this issue. Mike Cassidy has also requested an additional year's leave of absence to finish his doctorate at the University of Indiana. Phyllis Lacroix, who assumed his contract last year, has again been employed on a temporary basis and works in the acquisitions section.

HINKEMEYER RECOGNITION DINNER

Author Michael Hinkemeyer, a St. Cloud area native who has written eight novels, was honored at a recognition dinner at the Holiday Inn on October 4th. The award dinner followed the donation of several of the Hinkemeyer manuscripts to special collections at St. Cloud State LRS. Hopefully the donation of these manuscripts and subsequent novels and papers will form the foundation for an area writers collection. Among his most popular novels are Flames of Desire, a Gothic paperback novel, which has already sold more than a quarter of a million copies, and Fields of Eden, a hardback novel which has Stearns County as its setting. His most recent publication is the paperback Come Faith, Come Fire, and at the present time he is busy on a suspense novel entitled Lilac Night to be published by Crown.

In speaking at various functions over the two days at St. Cloud State, Hinkemeyer expressed satisfaction that St. Cloud State was interested in setting up the depository and that his close ties to the area were instrumental in picking the institution. According to Dean Berling, the papers will form the cornerstone for a local authors program which should help students and aspiring creative writers to understand better the creative process, a process that Hinkemeyer says is difficult at best to understand. Hinkemeyer's Gothic novels were published under the pseudonym Vanessa Royall.

CLERICAL CHANGES

There have been several clerical changes in LRS since last May. Michaela (Mac) Kimes has been employed in the Public Services office area with a responsibility for Minitex and interlibrary loan. Marilyn Moser received a promotion in civil service classification so she is now officially entitled Audiovisual Aide in Distribution. Janice Pietron has retained her responsibility for student workers but has shifted some of her responsibility to Distribution where she is in charge of film scheduling, film rentals, and related services. Mitzi Ergen has been employed to replace Doris Rauch as the clerical person in Archives. Debbie Binsfeld, who formerly worked part time in Archives, has become the full time paraprofessional in Government Documents.

LINDBERG LECTURES

Students and graduates might be interested in the Lindberg Lecture Series which was initiated at St. Cloud State on June 28, 1979, with a rousing debate on America's energy problems. More than 1,000 persons jammed Stewart Hall to hear an exchange of views from former U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stuart Udall and Leon Martel, executive vice-president of the Hudson Institute. The new series, a memorial to Charles A. Lindberg, Jr., is an annual summer forum on topics pertaining to the quality of life in Minnesota and the nation.

AT NORTH DAKOTA

The program of offering graduate courses in media at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks proved to be fairly successful. Last year two courses--Advanced Selection and Media Production--were offered. At the present time IM 608 Research Methods in Media is being offered. The program has been well received by media specialists in the area, and several of the students spent the summer at St. Cloud attending summer sessions. The two-fold purpose of the courses--initiation of a graduate program and continuing education--has been contingent on enrollment, and enrollment has been high enough to warrant continuation of the program. Winter quarter will see IM 644 Information Storage and Retrieval as the primary offering, although a course to permit teachers to develop media skills is also a possibility. IM 658 Systems Design is the course proposed for the Spring Quarter. Anyone desiring information about the program can write to the Center for Library and Audiovisual Education, College of Education, Saint Cloud State University.

PRESIDENT'S WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

The President's White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services will be held in November of this year. Attending the conference as the professional Minnesota delegates will be Barb Nemer, Bob Rolhf, and Pat Harpole. The delegates, although not necessarily elected to represent special groups, come from three areas--school, public, and special respectively. As the unofficial school media delegate Barb Nemer will be happy to listen to your suggestions and points of view about the upcoming conference. She can be contacted at Armstrong Senior High School in the Robbinsdale School District.

1979 MEDIA TOUR CANCELLED-- NEW TOUR BEING PLANNED

The regional media tour scheduled for the summer 1979 had to be cancelled due to a lack of participants. The tour, scheduled for early June and highlighted by several days in Winnipeg, was apparently not attractive enough to media people. While such a cancellation is disheartening, new plans have already been initiated for a workshop-tour to England in the summer of 1980. Tony Schulzetenberg and Dennis Fields, after a very successful England Tour in 1978, saw enough potential in a teacher-media specialist instructional design package to begin planning on such a tour. Hopefully before the end of the year a little more work will have produced concrete plans on which those anticipating joining such a tour can firm up their own summer plans. We'll keep you informed!

FACULTY EXHIBITS SAILING SKILLS

Gene Campbell and Rich Josephson are heavy into the avocation of sailing. Gene offered a three credit course in cruise sailing in late August and early September. The course involved sailing theory, navigation, and piloting, with the highlight of the course being a proficiency test on Lake Superior waters among the Apostle Islands. Gene has spent several summers developing his sailing skills on Lake Superior, and this past summer piloted a contestant's craft from Bayfield to the starting point at Sault Ste. Marie. This was the exclusive race that was written up in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune Picture Magazine. Gene also took out a group of outdoor/travel reporters for a Lake Superior cruise which formed the basis for a subsequent article in the Chicago Tribune Travel section. Rich Josephson has regattas as his focal point in sailing and is entered in quite a few in the course of the summer. The highlight of this summer's regatta season was the North American 5.2 Championship Regatta on Mille Lacs Lake.

EIGHT EMPLOYED AS GRADUATE ASSISTANTS

Eight of an increasing number of full time students have been employed as Graduate Assistants for 1979-80. Working in Public Services are Avis Anderson of Glendive, Montana, and Jane Demarais from Foley; working in Production Services are Larry Gifford from Rochester and Martha Vera from Peru; working in Instructional Services are Janet Nash from Glencoe and Billy Menakaya from Africa; and working in Technical Services are Steve Torma from Aurora and Rachel Hoff from Glenwood. More information about these people will be forthcoming in subsequent issues of the IM News.

The fact that so many Minnesota authors and publishers have not yet made their "big splash" in the publishing world should not deter media people from taking a closer look at their works. While names like Sigurd Olson, Les Blacklock, and Judith Guest are household names, names like Tim O'Brien, Kathleen Woodiwiss, Frederick Manfred, LaVyrle Spencer, and Jon Hassler may not be as commonplace. These and other Minnesota authors and producers have turned out works that should be of interest to Minnesota people and the students in Minnesota schools. The popularity of Hinkemeyer's Flames of Desire is an indication of student reaction. The most recent Minnesotan to have a first novel published is LaVyrle Spencer of Brooklyn Park whose novel entitled The Fulfillment was published by Avon Books. Ms. Spencer has set her novel in the Staples-Browerville area, an area that was her childhood home. The early 20th century work deals with life and love on an area farm.

MEA/MFT PROFESSIONAL DAYS PROGRAM

Wilson Bryan Key, author of various books on subliminal advertising, was the featured speaker at this year's fall MEMO professional days. The meetings were held at Southview Country Club in West St. Paul with MEMO Executive Board, Board of Directors, and General Membership meetings preceding the program. Janet Palmer of Forest Lake was in charge of the arrangements of this well attended program.

RUTH ERSTAD FALL WORKSHOP

The biennial Ruth Ersted Fall Workshop was held at Madden's Resort near Brainerd on September 21, 22, and 23rd. Some 240 media professionals from across the state attended this workshop which has been in existence since it was started by Ruth Ersted in the late 1940's. This year's program featured presentations by past presidents on various aspects of media leadership. Robert Miller of the State Department of Education made the customary "state of the media" report, and Charlie Herman of Josten's was the Friday evening speaker. Sandy Hustad, President Elect of MEMO, was in charge of program and arrangements.

Serving in the capacity of graduate assistants in the Center for Library and Audiovisual Education are Janet Nash and Billy Menakaya. Both are enrolled as masters candidates in the media program. Janet comes to St. Cloud by way of Hutchinson, MN, where she served as an English teacher. Jan's undergraduate degree is from Bemidji State University with an English major. She has also taught in Red Lake Public Schools. Billy was born in Nigeria, Africa, and attended college there. Since his arrival in the United States, Billy has taken courses at Montana State and Texas Southern. He has an undergraduate degree in Mass Communications from St. Cloud State and is very proficient in foreign languages. Six other graduate assistants have been employed and information about them will appear in subsequent issues.

JANET NASH AND BILLY MENAKAYA

CURRICULUM MATERIALS LABORATORY

Mary Russell, formerly with the Campus Lab School, is the director of the Curriculum Materials Laboratory in the Education Building. The Center contains materials of a curricular nature--kits, guides, etc.--and a large selection of text books. Publishers are encouraged to leave materials in the center for examination by students and teachers, specifically for the purpose of preview.

Rector Bent Bentsen, is the director of the campus experimental school at the Laererhøgskole in Kristiansand, Norway. His area of interest is in the role of television in schools of education, on college campus, and in the home. He visited St. Cloud State University as part of a six week U.S. trip which took him from Boston University, to St. Cloud State, to Penn State, and other cities in the East and Midwest. Rector Bentsen, spent a full day conferring with Fred Hill, Fred Polesak, Dennis Fields, Tony Schulzetenberg and other members of the College of Education.

FACULTY PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

Roger Sween combined an eastern summer vacation with two conferences on science fiction. His trip took him to places like Chicago, Boston, and New York City, with stops for the Ontario Area Science Fiction Conference in Toronto and the North American Science Fiction Conference in Louisville. St. Cloud State also has a second chairperson of a national AECT committee in Tony Schulzetenberg who heads up the Teacher Education Committee. Serving on the Editorial Advisory Board of Audiovisual Instruction is Harlan Jensen of Distribution Services.

Attending state association meetings in other states were John Berling and Dennis Fields. John attended the South Dakota all-association (SDAECT, SDLA, SDASL) meeting held at the Holiday Inn in Mitchell, October 10-12; Dennis made a presentation to the North Dakota media association in a meeting held in Grand Forks on October 18th. Dennis also introduced speaker Wilson Bryan Key at the MEMO Fall Conference held in St. Paul on October 19th.

A number of St. Cloud State personnel attended the biennial Ruth Erstad Conference held at Madden's on September 21-23rd. Tony Schulzetenberg made a presentation on leadership at the building level as part of a program of mini-sessions headed up by past presidents. Dennis Fields and Jane Dowd, along with Lucy Supan who handled much of the registration, also attended.

The annual Stout Conference in July was again attended by many Minnesota people. On the program was Sandra Hustad of White Bear Lake. St. Cloud faculty members attending were Dennis Fields, John Berling, Doreen Keable, and Tony Schulzetenberg. Graduate students Barb Morse, Barb Forcier, and Carolyn Green took in their first Stout Conference.

Jim Bertram, Production Services, has won several awards from the Northwest Daily Press Association for excellence in advertising. The ads were designed while he was employed by the St. Cloud Daily Times. Jim won first place in the B & W automotive advertising, and a first and second place in color automotive advertising.

Mike Simons of Instructional Technology took a trip to Utah to update his skills in the micro computer area. Mike attended a two week "Micro Computer and Video Disc" Institute at Utah State at Logan, Utah in June. Also in the Public Services Division, Marie Elsen continued her interest and activity in the archives area by attending the Society of American Archivists national conference in Chicago in late September.

David Rydberg is First Vice-President of Phi Delta Kappa this year. In October he attended the 37th Biennial Council and Fourth PDK International Conference on Educational Issues in St. Louis. Louis Costanzo serves as Treasurer and Tony Schulzetenberg as Newsletter Editor of PDK.

Dick Busse combined a Washington trip with professional activity in August as he and his family took the Amtrak route to the nation's capital. While in Washington Dick visited the Library of Congress, the National Archives, and the Government Printing Office.

Ginny Sorenson, after visiting Dallas for ALA, traveled to Winnipeg and the Thunder Bay Area, while Fred Hill made a summer trek to his home area and visited Utah State and Brigham Young Universities. Virginia Blaske attended the MIDLNET meeting in Milwaukee and also, along with Norm Clarke, the MINI-TEX Users Workshop at Bethel College in late August.

Norm and Pat Clark reported a very interesting time in Hawaii as Norm attended the Special Library Association Conference which was combined with the first International Conference of the Special Library Association.

Tony Schulzetenberg reports that he is getting to do his share of previewing as member of the ALA Non-print Editorial Advisory Committee and as a member of the St. John's University Liturgical Press Non-print Advisory Board.

GRADUATE GRAPEVINE

David Hanson, employed by the CX Corporation in Seattle, reports in that his work has taken him on extensive travels. He has been to a five week training session in Switzerland, and two weeks each in Newark, California, and New York. Dave works in training and development. Also in the business world, Peggy Keane has assumed the role of office manager at the Orpheum Theatre in Minneapolis.

SUMMER EMPLOYEES AT WORK

STICKS AND STONES

The Michael T. Hinkemeyer Recognition Dinner was well attended by many area media personnel. The insights offered by Hinkemeyer into the publishing industry should be of much value to aspiring writers, within and outside the media field.

M.I. Smith and his charming wife Marian were visitors to St. Cloud State in early October. Marian is extremely active in the retired teachers' organization and was in St. Cloud for a state convention. As most of you know, the annual MEMO M. I. Smith Conference is named after Mr. Smith. George Erickson reported that he enjoyed a nice visit with the Smiths as he gave them a tour of Learning Resources, and specifically the AVCAM (MEMO) Archives section which is well stocked with Smith items.

Marcia Daily Mohn was an August visitor to St. Cloud State. Marcia is now the director of the public library in Biloxi, Mississippi where husband Scott is stationed in the Air Force as a legal officer. Latest information on Judy Kinderski is that she works as a legal assistant for a group of some 100 lawyers in the Chicago area. The Ford Jensen family visited the Minnesota area this summer, seeking relief from the Arizona summer. Ford is in real estate in Tucson.

The first attempt at a homecoming get together for IM graduates, students, and faculty was a Saturday morning breakfast on October 20th. The affair, which may prove to be an annual event, was held in conjunction with the University Homecoming activities.

Randy Evans, electronics technician in the Production Services Division, has a new sailing and fishing partner. On August 25th he married Nancy West of Fergus Falls.

Graduates holding positions in the media field are reminded that the official school media organization is the Minnesota Educational Media Organization (MEMO) and that it needs your support. Your membership and support is being sought. Those interested in membership forms can write to Don Overlie in the Owatonna Schools; those interested in working for the organization can contact President John See in the Richfield Schools. Larry Gifford, graduate assistant at SCSU, is the Treasurer, and Tony Schulzetenberg, SCSU, is the Past President.
