LAMBERTY, HENRY

File No. B-760

Henry Lamberty was born March 10th, 1853 in Flaringing Germany, son of George and Clara Lamberty also natives of Germany. Henry Lamberty received his early education in the public and rural schools of Germany, attending from the age of seven until he was thirteen years old. He then worked for his father on the farm until he was about thirty-one years old, when he decided to come to America.

Henry Lamberty came to America in the Spring of 1884 and settled in St. Cloud, Minnesota. A few weeks after his arrival in St. Cloud he received employment on the Mathis Gans farm, about three miles west of the city, where he worked that season. The next year he worked for Chester Waite, on the large Waite farm, near the Sauk River. The next spring in 1887 Henry Lamberty went west to North Dakota, and worked for Peter Kromp on a farm near Hankinson, North Dakota, here he stayed two seasons. He then went back to Germany, for a short visit, and returned in 1900 going to work for Mr. Kromp in North Dakota, here he worked for eighteen years.

In 1918 Henry Lamberty decided to retire and came to Hinkley, Minnesota and stayed with his nephew for a number of years. Later he came to St. Cloud, Minnesota, and made his home at Saint Raepheals where he resides at the present time.
